That's just like last night; every time I looked at you I thought it was trying to get around behind your ear. There! that's Campbell. eiter. Now I must run and get that tiny bounget for your button-hole, and then I'll have you off my hands for this day," said pretty Clara Leslie as she tripped out

"Sydney, why don't you propose to Clara. The truth of the matter is she has spoiled you. You cannot afford to hire a valet, and how you are going to wait on yourself for the remainder of your life is a mystery to me. She attends to your silightest wishes, and as for your wardrohe she has taken it out of my hands altogether; and I'm sure it ought to he held up as a model to all the wives in the country."

"I agree with everything you say, sunt. Your protegree is the most charming little creature in existence. I do not know what I should do without her. But then, you know, one gets tired of being made love to all the time and I always did think marriage a denced-bore—something I couldn't think of, I assure you, anunt."

"Sydney, here is your bouquet, and it is time you were going," said Clara, en.
